Alan Corbett

35. We live in one of the many deadly hotspots for incidents and accidents for the Bruce Highway. What will you be advocating for in relation to the improvement of our roads if elected?

Previously there was an 80/20 split in funding. I would like to return to that arrangement. If people are at risk, government has a moral obligation to use taxpayers money to intervene.

36. Queensland is a proud state that welcomes free speech and robust conversation, particularly with those in positions of power. As the local member, will you commit to having an open dialogue with the Bundaberg community, particularly on social media, or will you look to ban locals who disagree with you or post alternative views, from discussions?

I will certainly listen to those with alternative points of view. While contact through social media is essential I will have public meetings and be open to Q and A on regular media slots.

37. What can you do to support community clubs assisting the less fortunate in our communities?

Listen to their needs and work with them to meet these needs.

38. How do you ensure your policies are the “right” ideas rather than just popular ideas that voters might like to hear and feel?

By listening and evaluating what residents believe about my policies. I will not advocate for a policy that is not well-researched and is unlikely to have general support.

39. At elections we hear candidates spruik what they know. Are you willing to confront voters by telling them a community or industry problem you don't know the answer to and outline the process you use to work with people to solve problems you don't have the answers to?

Certainly. It is essential to my platform that I ask for advice from those who are dealing with these issues.

40. What are your views on diversity, equity and inclusion?

All need to be treated with respect whatever their circumstances.

41. What does Bundaberg need most?

Political representation that truly reflects the will of the people.

42. What makes you proud of Bundy?

Its location, health services, environment but especially its people.
